VanEck's Dividend Leaders ETF Reaches 10bn Milestone

- The VanEck Morningstar Developed Markets Dividend Leaders UCITS ETF invests in the top 100 dividend-paying stocks from developed markets, selected based on dividend yield and stability.
- The ETF ranks among the top 10 European ETFs by net inflows year to date, making it one of the most favoured ETFs among European investors[1].

Zurich, 22 October 2026 – About ten years after its launch on May 23, 2016, the VanEck Morningstar Developed Markets Dividend Leaders UCITS ETF has reached 10 billion euros of assets under management (AUM). The fund's assets have grown significantly, particularly over the past three years[2].

"The strategy concentrates on companies with substantial, established dividend payouts" explained Martijn Rozemuller, CEO of VanEck Europe. "Many dividend companies are well-established and, backed by their market power, can pass rising costs on to customers keeping profits and dividends stable or even growing. This makes them a natural hedge against inflation or tariff-driven price pressures." Dividends are not guaranteed and can be cut in difficult times.

So far in 2026, approximately 45 percent of the roughly 11 billion euros in capital inflows in dividend ETFs has flowed into the VanEck Morningstar Developed Markets Dividend Leaders UCITS ETF[3], placing it among the top 10 European ETFs by net inflows year to date and making it one of the most favoured ETFs among European investors[4]. Since its inception, the ETF has delivered a total return of +223.9 percent and maintained a consistent distribution record since its launch, through challenging market environments such as the sell-off of 2018, the COVID-19 driven market decline of 2020 and the sharp interest rate rises in 2022[5].

A different kind of global ETF

The VanEck Morningstar Developed Markets Dividend Leaders UCITS ETF tracks the Morningstar Developed Markets Large Cap Dividend Leaders Screened Select Index, a selection of the 100 highest-dividend-paying stocks from developed markets, whose dividend payments are screened for sustainability. “We often refer to this ETF as a different kind of global ETF , unlike standard indices, it is not weighted by market capitalization but by dividend strength,” Rozemuller continued.

The ETF serves as a suitable complement to existing allocations for many investors, as it is neither heavily weighted toward the U.S. nor toward technology. “The stocks with the strongest dividend profiles tend to be concentrated in Europe, Australia, and other developed markets. This structural difference is the reason why the ETF tends to perform differently from a standard global equity exposure and performed so well in 2022 and 2025 – years in which U.S. large-caps underperformed,” added Rozemuller. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results.

The Dutch domiciled ETFs use a gross reinvestment index as opposed to many other ETFs and investment funds that use a net reinvestment index. Comparing with a gross reinvestment index is the purest form since it considers that Dutch investors can reclaim the dividend tax withheld. Please note that the performance includes income distributions gross of Dutch withholding tax because Dutch investors receive a refund of the 15% Dutch withholding tax levied. Different investor types and investors from other jurisdictions may not be able to achieve the same level of performance due to their tax status and local tax rules. Returns may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations. Performance should be assessed over a medium- to long-term.
