

Invest in the Final Frontier

WARP | VanEck Space ETF

Investing in the Space Economy

The space industry is evolving quickly, driven by a sharp decline in the cost of getting mass to orbit. As launch costs fall, activities that were once too expensive are becoming more commercially viable, supporting growth in satellite communications, Earth observation, defense systems, and space-based data networks. Lower launch costs are helping shift space from a government-led effort to a more durable commercial market. WARP targets publicly traded companies that derive most of their revenue from these activities and are helping build a more accessible and economically viable space economy.

Lower Launch Costs Are Expanding the Viable Space Economy

Targeted Exposure to the Final Frontier at Scale

WARP offers targeted exposure to the commercial buildout of the space economy. By focusing on companies that derive the majority of their revenue from space-related activities, it emphasizes pure-play exposure rather than businesses with only limited ties to the theme. That approach may provide differentiated access to a long-term growth industry.

Why WARP?

An Economy at Liftoff

Access to a large, expanding market with revenues expected to triple by 2035.<sup>1</sup>

Industry Inflection Point

Exposure to companies positioned to benefit from falling launch costs and broader global commercial adoption.

Pure-Play Space

Innovations including launch systems, satellite infrastructure, Earth observation and space data without the typical dominance of aerospace and defense names.

The “Net Asset Value” (NAV) of a Fund is determined at the close of each business day, and represents the dollar value of one share of the fund it is calculated by taking the total assets of the fund, subtracting total liabilities, and dividing by the total number of shares outstanding. The NAV is not necessarily the same as the ETF’s intraday trading value. Investors should not expect to buy or sell shares at NAV. Index returns assume reinvestment of all income and do not reflect any management fees or brokerage expenses associated with fund returns. Returns for actual fund investors may differ from what is shown because of differences in timing, the amount invested and fees and expenses. You cannot invest directly in an index.

MarketVector® Space Index (MVWARPTR): seeks to track the overall performance of companies involved in space exploration, rockets and propulsion systems, and satellite equipment and communications (“Space Companies”).
